ELECTION MATTERS.

The Muddled Political Situation of the Fourth Representative District.

The move made by Acting Governor Cooper yesterday in deciding that he did not have any authority over a candidate provided that he was properly certified to the office has brought a little light into the otherwise mixed controversy over the fourth district election.

Now that it is known that the name of August Dreier will be on the ticket the opposition parties are marshalling their forces and preparing themselves to make a terrible assault on the Republican fortress of the fourth electoral district. The issue was clearly set forth this morning to an INDEPENDENT representative by a prominent Home Ruler in the following words:

"Legally or illegally, the name of August Dreier will be on the ticket on election day, and mind you on a majority of the voting slips too. It will be time enough afterwards to talk about legality. What we want now is to demonstrate to President Roosevelt in a very emphatic manner, the unpopularity of Dole and his party; we want to elect our man in Governor Dole's own district."

That's the situation in a nutshell. The Republicans are moving heaven and earth to keep Dreier's name from the ticket. The best legal advice has been secured, and no doubt but that some move will be made shortly in the Courts. The Republicans will hold two meetings tonight at which several natives will speak.

A lengthy consultation was held this morning between A. G. M. Robertson and T. McCarty Stewart, attorneys for the Republican central committee, at the conclusion of which a protest was drafted and will be sent to Governor Cooper this afternoon.

If the chief executive does not see his way clear to interfere, which is very likely, the matter will be taken up before the Courts at once.

A number of Republicans, however, are in favor of fighting the campaign on its own merits regardless of the personality of the candidates. In the event of August Dreier coming out ahead at the polls, then, they say, the proper course will be to contest his election.

In the meanwhile the Home Rulers with their allies the Democrats, are working steadily and enthusiastically for their candidate. A number of public meetings are being planned and chairman Kaula proposes to make a number of speeches this week covering the district from Kakaako to Waikiki and Kamohili.
